

RUMBLES ON RAILROAD ROW

The Texas Railway Accounting Officers' Association was in convention in Corpus Christi Friday.

So vividly attractive was the word picture of fisherman's blues painted for them by Jake Doyle of the Gulf Coast Lines concerning Corpus Christi Bay that five of the members, namely E. J. Greenell of Fort Worth, H. G. Askew of Austin, H. L. Woodall of Laredo, J. N. Bailey of Paris and Charles E. Stow of Fort Worth, turned their backs to the call of business and remained one day more so as to enjoy a trip in the early morning hours of Saturday.

Mr. Stow was the leader of the party, busying himself with the preparations of bait, breakfast and boat, with a dispatch and accuracy befitting his oft-repeated claim as being "an old hand."

The start was made from the Nueces well before daylight. "Mexican Joe" had the canvas in the hoveas and the boat's nose to the open when the party arrived and in short order a jolly boat was skimming the surf seawards. There was sufficient breeze to "rock noggard-bird" and the fishing grounds soon were sighted.

Greenell caught a snapper, Askew hooked a cat, Woodall landed the eels, a redfish, Bailey jerked a mullet and Stow caught—the first passing best for shore.

He said yesterday that he was unable to distinguish the name of the fish that he had mistakenly responded to his H. G. H., because the thing assumed best upon saltwater even under no serious circumstances.

The heartless fellow fishermen had refused to listen to his explanations of the ghoulish attack that had suddenly overtaken him on the trip out—even launched at his offer of ample pay for their trouble if they would but "land him somewhere, anywhere, if only it was land."

They should be offered any one "all-he-had—10¢ and a cold wash" for just pleasure instance. He says the bark that did take him in simply "saved an innocent life," and that he would gladly have paid half his fortune for the service.

The "heartless" fellow fishermen justify their treatment of him as a punishment for his brother "invading the fish," on that they would not like regular bait.

The participants were thoroughly pleased with Corpus Christi, three of the attending members of the association being still in the city today. These are Chas. H. Price of Fort Worth, with the Prince road; E. J. Greenell of Fort Worth, with the Park Worth and Denver road; and J. N. Bailey of Paris, with the Frisco road.

The suit was filed in the federal court, and with it as evidence were deposited jewels and other articles alleged to have been showered upon her during the brief love affair.

TONGUES WAG OVER SUIT

NEW ORLEANS, La., May 13.—Riotously good-humored was a chaotic session this week through the filing of a suit against Beau-Couvre, a prominent sugar man, by a pretty Texas girl, Miss Lillian Lorraine, who denies the unusual charge that she held her eye blotted by the chubbs and was generally beaten up by him at 7:00 o'clock one morning recently. The suit seeks $25,000 damages for her lost time and personal injuries. The suit was filed in the federal court, and with it as evidence were deposited jewels and other articles alleged to have been showered upon her during the brief love affair.

The tongue of the amateur was especially strong concerning the gifts, which are said to have been worn by the defendant's first wife during her reign as Queen of the Carnaval here.

According to the documents filed by the girl's attorney, Miss Lorraine charges that Constance asked her to marry him last January, and that she promised to wed if the chubbs would give up his liquor. They recite the troubles of the young woman, who claims her fiancé called at all hours of the day and night, sometimes under the influence of strong drink.

His continuation after each of these indiscretions seemed so complete to her that she forgave him. In the hope she claims of returning his conduct, and thus bringing about an early fulfillment of the arrangement to marry.

The early morning affray occurred on April 18 of this year. She claims her fiancé without cause brutally assaulted and beat her, that he struck her and threw her to the ground, and kicked her until her body was black and blue. Then, she avows, he turned over her and blocked her way with his fist. After which, she says, he rushed precipitately from her home.
